

GOLF SENSE

By STEPHEN CONNOLLY

Pro, Torrance Fairways

Golf etiquette applies not only to the players, but also to the spectators who gallery a tournament.

Lets' take the player first.

On the approach to the starting tee or first hole, the game has usually been arranged as a twosome or a foursome. By this time, the individual golfer has become acquainted with the other members of the group.

The honor of teeing off first usually goes to the low handicap player, who is the best golfer in the group. This changes when ladies are playing in a group. They, through courtesy, are allowed to tee off first.

While the player is making a shot, everyone is quiet and remains on the right side of him. This is to avoid any distraction, which might affect the way he hits the ball.

Replace Divots
Great care is taken on iron shot to replace divots so that the course is left in good shape. On trap shots, the sand must be smoothed out before the golfer leaves the bunker.

The player furthest away always takes the first shot.

In putting, each player should make the position of his ball, usually with a small coin or other suitable marker.

Do not ram the flag pole into the hole. At times, this can break the sides of the cup. Also, players should not conduct post mortems on the green after holing out. Other groups usually are waiting to come through. Each group should leave the green as soon as everyone has putted down and the flag has been replaced.

Watch Players Ahead
Do not shoot a ball when you are not sure it won't interfere with the players ahead of you.

Turn in any articles or clubs found on the course to the pro, leaving your name and address for references.

Be sure to be truthful about your score.

Also, help out the players who do not know the course and always practice the Golden Rule.

Next Week: Hitting Iron shots.

The Trojans, Walterians and Huns picked up wins last week as the Recreation Department's girls' summer softball league got underway in Torrance.

In a pair of Tuesday night games at Walteria Park, the Huns measured the Duds, 15-10, and the Walterians topped the Rogues, 15-8.

Lee Harris bopped a home run and Joan Vachalek had three hits to lead the Huns to their victory. Alice Cruz had a homer and a single to top the Duds' hitting.

GIANTS EDGE PIRATES ON LATE RALLY

Coming back from a 6-0 deficit, the Giants tore into the league-leading Pirates and came up with a 7-6 last-ditch win in an American Little League feature game last week.

The Giants rallied for five runs in the last half of the fifth frame, then added two more in the sixth to take the win Wednesday evening at Little League Park.

Butch Morris walked to start the Giants' fireworks in the sixth. Chuck Thorne then sliced a single to lead and both runners advanced when Pirate Dan Lenahan bobbled the ball.

Dodger Protest Denied
Protest of a June 16th game with the Pirates has been denied the Dodgers by league officials. The Dodgers had lodged a complaint in the Pirates, 5-4, win, but it was not allowed because the protest was not made immediately by the Dodger manager.

Previously, the Oaks outlasted the Rainiers, 16-12, in a wild fray at the local park. The losers staged an uphill battle, tallying eight runs in the last half of the seventh, but they failed to catch the heavy-hitting Oak crew. Al Wicker and Boucher pitched for the Oaks.

Thomsen Gets Shutout
Ernie Thomsen pitched a masterpiece Tuesday night to lead his Padre teammates to a 7-0 shutout win over the Angels. He gave up three hits and was backed by a six-hit attack. He failed to walk a single Angel.

Dave Ladd, Grover Morris and Thomsen each had a two-base hit for the Padres.

In other Babe Ruth games, the Stars belted the Padres in a five-inning tilt, 3-2; the Rainiers stopped the Beavers, 10-6; the Angels beat the Stars, 7-5; the Solons took the Tigers, 4-3; and the Padres beat the Solons, 10-9.

The Angel-Star tussle went eight innings, with Stan Fittinger's two-run homer in the first extra inning, giving the Angels the win.

PARTRIDGE POPULATION MOVES EAST

Seeking to spread Southern California's well-established chukar partridge population eastward to the banks of the Colorado River, the Department of Fish and Game has just released 140 more of these feathered speedsters near Draper Lake, west Palo Verde.

Chukar releases have already been made this year in the Pichacho and Gavilan Wash areas, upriver from Imperial Dam.

Years ago chukars, produced from game farm brood stock, failed to make a go of it along the Colorado. The birds now being introduced into the area are offspring of harder, wild-trapped chukars held at the Brawley Game Farm.

The Department plans to release 4,000 chukars in eastern Riverside and Imperial Counties this year. The plans will be made in suitable areas where chukars are not now present.

Of the 4,000 birds, 2,500 will be the offspring of wild-trapped brood stock, 1,500 will be of old game farm stock and 500 will be wild chukars trapped from other areas where they have become well-established.
